

Safety in Business on the Internet = Security

Peter Elford

Senior Consulting Engineer, Cisco Systems, Australia

Abstract

The Internet has provided unprecedented opportunities to Businesses to enrich and extend their products, services and markets. But there is no such thing as a free lunch, so there are challenges associated with conducting business with and over the Internet. This presentation looks at these challenges and identifies some of the components of a secure business Internet connection.